THE SPEED LIMIT DEFIED.

Motorists in Great Britain Persistently Go Faster Than the Law Allows.

Writes an automobilist: "There is a speed limit in England and throughout Europe. Nowhere can one go faster than 20 miles an hour. The result is that, everywhere, everybody goes as fast as he pleases, and the brutal rate at which the cars fly through the narrow village streets, regardless of life or limb, would make me a socialist if I were a poor laborer. The English roads are very narrow. All are lined with green hedges instead of fences and cross each other suddenly at right angles. All through England, and especially in southern England, life is greatly concentrated, with the result that the spring in the English lanes, while the most beautiful thing on earth, can be conducive to smash-ups of all sorts and conditions.

"While we were in Great Britain the marquis of Queensberry petitioned for the right to carry arms in order to shoot any motorist on sight. He had been in the wilds of Africa and in the mountains of British Columbia after grizzlies, he said, without feeling that his life was in danger; but he was afraid to leave the gates of his own estate, and had pulled his own child from under the wheels of a flying automobile. If a nobleman's child was not safe on the roadside, how about the child of an ordinary subject?

"In Wales we ran into some very funny experiences. The sturdy Welsh ponies bore our advent philosophically, but the inhabitants 'shied.' Every human being became panic-stricken at sight of an automobile, and if he were riding or driving, his collapse was complete. We always stopped short and let them pass us when traveling in the opposite direction, or would overtake them slowly when traveling the same way. But we were meeting a terrorized population, who judged us guilty until we were proven innocent."

HOLLAND AND BELGIUM.

Manifestations of Desire for Closer Relations Between the Two Countries.

Some weeks ago the Petit Bleu, of Brussels, published a series of articles on the oft-debated idea of a closer union between the separated parts of the old kingdom of the Low Countries. The matter has now been taken up by the Dutch and Belgian press, and also by the German papers, but no decision has been come to. On both sides there seems to be a desire for more intimate relations, but as to the means by which this result is to be brought about nothing definite has been said. Union was the dream of William the Silent, and in 1815 it was established by the congress of Vienna. But the events of 1830 separated the two countries, and as Holland and Belgium differ in religion, language and economic theories, it is difficult to see how that which failed in 1830 can be successful now. Belgium has a mixed population, and the Walloons, who speak French, and the Flemings, who speak Flemish, have never thoroughly harmonized. The Flemings naturally turn to their relations in the north, and look on closer union with Holland as natural and desirable, and it is among them that the movement has its chief force. There are many drawbacks to the proposal, and the question of free trade and protection is not the least of them. But no harm is done by the debate in the newspapers; and whatever be the result of it, anything that tends to strengthen the position of the two little states will be cordially welcomed on this side of the channel.

DISUSE OF HAIR POWDER.

Immense Draft on England's Flour Supply Causes Public Disapproval.

During the last years of the eighteenth century the price of grain in England was very high. So much flour was used as hair powder that an attempt was made to check its use. A recent book, "A Sign of the Barber Pole," contains a copy of a document issued by the "Mayor, Justices and principal inhabitants" of Great Yarmouth, recommending the disuse of hair powder for a time. "We flatter ourselves," they said in this proclamation, "which was issued in January, 1796, 'the military will not hesitate to adopt it, being fully convinced that appearances are at all times to be sacrificed to the public weal, and that in doing this they really do good. January 27, 1795.'"

In the following April a party of gentlemen at Woburn Abbey entered into an engagement to forfeit a certain sum of money if any of them wore their hair tied or powdered within a certain period. Nevertheless the Tories regarded with distrust persons who did not use hair powder. So late as 1820 a certain Major Cox, of Derby, an excellent Tory, declined to allow his son to become a pupil of a well-known clerical tutor, for the reason that the clergyman did not powder, and that he wore his hair short, which suggested that he must be a dangerous revolutionist.

Social Drawback. "She'll never be a success in society—she doesn't know what people to be polite to."

"You mean she's rude to people who can help her along."

"No, it's the other way. She's polite to everybody alike."—Baltimore American.

THE BREATH OF LIFE

It's a significant fact that the strongest animal of its size, the gorilla, also has the largest lungs. Powerful lungs means powerful creatures. How to keep the breathing organs right should be man's chief study. Like thousands of others, Mrs. Ora A. Stephens, of Port Williams, O., has learned how to do this. She writes: "Three bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery stopped my cough of two years and cured me of what my friends thought consumption. O. It's grand for throat and lung troubles." Guaranteed by E. T. Whitehead & Co., druggists. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

SOLDIERS BURIED ALIVE.

Disinterment of Bodies at Fort Hayes, Kan., Shows Ghastly Mistake.

Horrible discoveries were lately made in the cemeteries of old Fort Hayes, Kan., where the bodies of soldiers buried during frontier days are being disinterred and taken to Leavenworth for reburial. These discoveries go to show that a large number of those buried during the cholera scare and epidemic were really buried alive and afterward returned to consciousness while in the tomb. The matter is being discussed as little as possible among those doing the work, and is being suppressed by the authorities, who are giving out little or no information.

Caskets were disinterred that gave evidences of frightful struggles of the inmates for life. Some of the bodies had turned over; others had the legs drawn up to the neck; in others the hands were filled with hair that had been torn out by the roots, and the faces were distorted fearfully. In some the clothing was almost torn from the bodies.

The principal evidences of living interments were found in the section of the old cemetery, where a large number of cholera victims had been buried. During the cholera scare the health laws required the immediate burial of victims after they were pronounced dead. It is supposed that in the haste and fright a number of supposed dead men were buried, and that these later returned to consciousness.

CHANGES IN BIRTH RATES.

London Statistician Says Fluctuations Rise and Fall with Prices.

At a meeting of the Royal Statistical society, held recently in London at the society's rooms, a paper was read on "The Changes in the Marriage and Birth Rates in England and Wales During the Last Half Century," with an inquiry as to Their Causes," by G. Udny Yule.

A careful examination in the fluctuations in the birth rate showed, declared Mr. Yule, that it appeared to respond like the marriage rate, to the cycle of trade and industry, though the movement is curiously irregular as compared with that of the latter rate. The fall of the birth rate, or a marked increase in the rate of fall, commenced in many European countries just about 1875-76, that is, when the effect of the fall in prices from 1873 was just beginning to make itself felt.

The turning point was too well marked not to be due to some very definite cause, and too widespread to be ascribed to any cause of all a local character. The greatest intercessional increase rates in England and Wales occurred, it was pointed out, after periods of high prices.

For Thin, Poor Blood

You can trust a medicine tested 60 years! Sixty years of experience, think of that! Experience with Ayer's Sarsaparilla; the original Sarsaparilla; the Sarsaparilla the doctors endorse for thin blood, weak nerves, general debility.

But even this grand old medicine cannot do its best work if the liver is inactive and the bowels constipated. For the best possible results, you should take the laxative doses of Ayer's Little Pills, which take the Sarsaparilla.

Made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Also sold by druggists of HAIR VIGOR, AGUE CURE, CHERRY PECTORAL.

THE ORIGINAL LAXATIVE COUGH SYRUP KENNEDY'S LAXATIVE HONEY AND TAR Blossom and Honey on Every Bottle.

There is real pleasure in chewing the best tobacco grown where the best tobacco grows—in the famous Piedmont country

CHEW WHAT YOU KNOW ABOUT

Only choice selections of this well matured and thoroughly cured tobacco is used in making SCHNAPPS. That's why SCHNAPPS and other of the Reynolds' brands, as shown by the Internal Revenue statistics for a fiscal year, made the wonderful growth of six and one-quarter million pounds, or a gain of one-third of the entire increased consumption of chewing and smoking tobaccos in the United States.

Evidently, chewers cannot resist the flavor and they cheer SCHNAPPS because SCHNAPPS cheers them more than any other chewing tobacco and every man that chews SCHNAPPS makes the good thing along—his chewer makes other chewers—until the fact is now established that there are many more chewers and pounds of tobacco chewed, to the population, in those States where SCHNAPPS tobacco was first sold than there are in the States where SCHNAPPS has not yet been offered to the trade.

SCHNAPPS is like a cup of fine Java coffee, sweetened just enough to bring out its natural, stimulating qualities. SCHNAPPS pleases all classes of chewers: the rich, because they do not find a chew that really pleases them better at any price; the poor, because it is more economical than the larger 10c or 15c cigars and they get their money's worth of the real snappy, stimulating flavor as appreciated by tobacco lovers. All imitations contain much more sweetening than SCHNAPPS. They are made that way to hide poor tobacco improperly cured.

For the man who chews tobacco for tobacco's sake, there is no chew like SCHNAPPS.

Sold at 20c. per pound in 5c. cuts. Strictly 10c. and 15c. plugs.
